to this matter forcibly to convince you that some check must be placed on those who without the most urgent cause, would have recourse to it. The argument of those who sanction the operation is, that antiseptle surgery minimizes the danger from it, but this argument is not borne out by experience, as the deaths from cutting into the abdominal cavity, whether caused by the knife of the assassin or the blade of the surgery many capable of the surgery capable of the sur President Carnot went to Lyons to visit the exhibition of arts, sciences and industries. He left the chamber of commerce banquet, given in his honor, shortly after 9 o'clock, and walked to his carriage, which was waiting in the Place de la Bourse. He had hardly taken his seat when Santo, a newspaper in his hand, pressed through the crowd and sprang upon the carriage step. President Carnot started slightly. Santo snatched a dagger from the newspaper and plunged it into the President's abdomen near the liver. The president various cases of laparotomy which resulted fatally during his practice, which he could not give to the public without betraying private confidence. He recommends that each physisank back unconscious. He was taken at once to the prefecture and the most skillful surgeons in the city were summoned. Meantime Santo was arrested.

The news spread swiftly to every part of the city. Infuriated crowds filled the streets. Before 10 o'clock an Italian restaurant had been sacked and the police were obliged to strain every nerve to protect the Italian consulate President Carnot arrived in Lyons Saturday and intended to remain there over Tuesday. He was accompanied by Gen. Borius, chief of his military household, most of his other household officials. Premier Dupuy, M. Bordeaux and other members of the cabinet. He was received enthusiastically at the station by the mayor and the district officials, who, in twenty-seven landaus drawn by horses draped with the tri-colors, escorted him and his party to the hotel De Ville, about three kilometres distant. Cheering crowds filled the streets and gave the president such a welcome as he had seldom received. There was a luncheon at the hotel and in the evening a dinner at the prefecture.

From the balcony of the prefecture the president reviewed a large torchlight procession, which was followed by fireworks and an illumination.

Yesterday the president and his party paid a state visit to the exhibition in the Parc de la Tete d'Or. Afterward the president held a reception at the prefecture. He planned to go to the Grand theater on the Place de la Comedi last evening after the banquet at the chamber of commerce.

He was in a peculiarly happy mood during the banquet, and was noticeably clated at the cordiality of his reception, not only by the crowd outside the building, but also by the guests within. He was cheered incessantly from the moment he left the chamber of commerce until he took the carriage for the theater.

On each of the driver's boxes sat one of the mob with a drawn revolver who saw that the hack drivers promptly obeyed orders. Arriving on the open prairie at Austin bluffs, Gen. Tarsney was removed from the carriage and stripped nude and A COAT OF TAR AND FEATHERS was administered. The ringleader of the kidnapers had previously given orders that Tarsney was not to be abused. This order seems to have been obeyed after the general was subdued by clubbing at the hotel. After tar and feathering Gen. Tarsney the mob warned him against returning to the springs. While the mob were at the hotel Police Officer Agard

HEARD THE CALLS FOR ASSISTANCE and while on the way to render aid, was stopped by another member of the tarring party and compeled at the point of a revolver to halt until the balance of the mob had secured their man. In less than ten minutes after the hacks had departed, three mounted police started in hot pursuit of the abductors. One of these officers

WHO STRUCK THE RIGHT TRAIL and came up with the mob, and had the pleasure of looking down the muzzle of a villainous gun and ordered to surrender, which he promptly did, and was an involuntary witness of the dastardly outrage.

GEN. TARSNEY STILL MISSING

The Outraged Officer's Position-Probable Cause of the Dastardly Visitation. Colordo Springs, Col., June 23 .- Police officers are scouring the country for Adjt.-Gen. Tarsney, but can find no trace of the missing man. There was a meeting of twenty-five deputy sher-

His undaunted | with bearing at that time antagonized the police and their sympathizers, and all freely stated that if shooting commenced he would be the first man to In the earlier stages of the Cripple Creek trouble he was legal adviser for some of the miners, and since the settlement of the strike has resumed his services in that capacity. While the mititia were in the field at Cripple Creek he was again the direct representative of the governor, through whom orders were transmitted to Gen. Brooks. In this service he found himself opposed once more to many of the men alligned against him at the city that the American should pause in his hall.

Gone to Assist in the Scarch. DENVER. Col., June 24.-A specia train containing a large number of detectives left yesterday for Colorado Springs to assist in the search for Gen. Tarsney and the men who kidnaped him. Mrs. Tarsney and her daughter also left on the special train for the Springs.

A BEAUTIFUL MIRAGE.

The People of Columbus, Ind., Given a Heavenly View of St. Louis. COLUMBUS, Ind., June 24.-Friday evening the western sky presented picture of mirage of a beautiful city. with its churches, spires and elegant buildings, and wide streets lined with beautiful shade trees. The hillsides were covered with foliage, and at the foot of the hill was a beautiful river, shining like silver. The clouds which surrounded the scene were highly colored, and tinted with the various color, of the rainbow. The sky presented a true picture of some distant city, believed by some to have been St. Louis The beautiful scene was admired by many for at least thirty minutes.

Much Damage by Storm inthe Vicinity of Timn. O.

TIFFIN, O., June 24.-The most severe tornado that has visited this section in half a dozen years swept this vicinity last evening. The air was oppressively hot, and the storm burst forth without warning. It uprooted trees, leveled fe nees, destroyed houses and scores of fine orchards.

A double-decked electric car narrowly escaped being toppled over a 20foot embankment and three large trees were blown across the track directly in front of it. The passengers were almost frantic with fear.

Samuel Steine, a farmer just north of town, was struck by a falling tree and so badly crushed that he cannot live, and three men who were in the field with him where thrown off a load of hay and the load capsized upon them. Neither of them was very dangerously hurt.

The tornado was accompanied by a heavy hail storm which has done great damage to wheat and other cereals. The reports later indicate that the path of the tornado extends for many miles from the northwest to the south east and that a great deal of damage will be reported.

A BABYLONIAN TRADITION. Curious Beliefs Concerning the Earth's First Inhabitants.

From Berosus, a learned Babylonian, who wrote about the year 260 B. C., the following curious account of creation is taken: "In the beginning all was darkness and water, and therein were generated monstrous animals and men f strange and peculiar form. Some of these latter were menlike creatures with two wings, and some even with four. Some had one head and two faces; others two heads with a single lace between. Sometimes a single body would have heads both of the nale and the female. Besides the above there were men with heads and horns like goats, men with hoofs like horses, and some with the upper part of a man joined to the lower parts of a horse, like centaurs. Then there were bulls with wings and human heads, dogs with four bodies and with fishes' tails, men and horses with dogs' heads, creatures with heads and bodies like horses, but with claws like lions and tails like fish. Besides these there were other monsters showing a mixture of the forms of various beasts. Moreover there were monstrous fish and reptiles and divers other creatures which had borrowed something from each other's shapes; of all of which the likenesses are still preserved in the temple of Belus. * * * A woman ruled alt these monsters and her name was Omorka, which is the same as Chaldee Thalatth and the Greek Thalassa. Then Belus appeared. He split the woman in twain, and of one half of her he made the heavens and of the other half the earth, and the monsters which she had ruled he caused to perish. And he split the darkness and divided the heavens from the earth, and put all the world in order. Belus then commanded one of the gods to cut off his head and to mix the blood which flowed forth with the earth, and to form man and beast therefrom. So man was made intelligent, and was a partaker of wisdom. Likewise Belus made the stars, the sun, the moon and the planets."-St. Louis Republic.

THE HIGHLAND COSTUME. How It Was Introduced Among the Early

The first reference to Highland costume occurs in the Saga of Magnus Barefoot, King of Norway, 1093-1103, written by Snorro Sturleson, who was reared with the children of that monarch's daughter. Here it is stated that Magnus and his men, on their return from a marauding expedition to the west of Scotland, "brought with them a great deal of the habits and fashions of clothing of these western parts. They went about the streets with bare legs, and had short kirtles and overcloaks, and therefore his men called him Magnus Barefoot or Bareleg." In the thirteenth century we seem to have something like a first reference to actual tartans in the statutes of the church of Aberdeen, which provide that "all ecclesiastics are to be suitably appareled, avoiding red. green, and striped clothing, and their garments shall not be shorter than the middle of the leg." But it should be noticed that iffs at Antler's park at 10 o'clock last the word "tartar." which occurs in the night, and it is believed the plot against fifteensh century, in the accounts of the lord high treasurer of Scotland. and which was regarded, by both Borthwick and Pinkerton, as meaning tartan, really indicates, as pointed out by Dr. and conviction of any of the partici- Dickson, a fabric of eastern origin, frequently "variant" or shot, the warp Timothy J. Tarsney was appointed and woof being of contrasting colors. We find, however, a true reference to tartan, in the same accounts, in the following century: for in August, 1538, there appears an entry for "iij. clnis Tarsney was the personal representa- of Heland tartane to be hoiss to the being evidently intended to be worn counted for under the same date .-

> Old Holland Songs. Some of the old Dutch nursers rhymes and songs brought to New York by settlers of the early seventeenth century are still in use among their de scendants here and among the kin left behind in Holland. A New Yorker traveling in Europe fell in with a Hol-lander and recited to him, as well as he could recall it a Dutch lullaby long used in the family of the American. The Dutchman instantly recognized the ong as the lullaby he had childhood, furnished a translation, and was so delighted to meet one of his own race from over-seas that he insisted
